New Zealand's Municipal Milk. The story of what is said to be the first municipal milk plant was related recently by Henry A. Ward of Wellington, New Zealand, while he was visiting Dean H. E. Van Norman, president of World's Dairy Congress Association. Mr. Ward is general manager of the milk department of his city and caters to the requirements of 125,000 people. He has been in the United States since October, studying American methods October, studying American methods and machinery for milk distribution.

The idea of the World's Dairy Congress appealed to him so strongly that he sought first-hand information respectant methods with the plant of the world in the Control of the Sought first-hand information respectant methods with the plant of the control of the Sought first hand information respectant methods with the sought first hand information respectation. ing the plan to carry back to his co workers on the other side of the globe. New Zealand is noted for its exper ments with governmental novelties ar so it was natural that a number of her forward-looking citizens accepted the leadership of City Councilor C. J. B. Norwood, when he proposed that Wellington go into the milk business. The milk situation was bad. The distributors purchased their supplies where they could and for the best prices they could, deliveries were uncertain in the winter time, and the methods of handling were unscientific.

Through the latitude allowed it unde the war regulations, the city counci January 1, 1919, and invited Mr. Ward hen manager of the Wellington Dairy Farmers' Co-operative Association, to head the new venture. He had had 25 years' experience in dairy management o fit him to become the general manager of the city milk department. To begin with he did three things. He arranged to make contracts with al the farmers who looked to Wellington as the market for their milk. He established a pasteurization plant to treat the milk and he established a creamery fifty miles from town to convert th surplus milk into butter and cheese.

There was a small deficit in 1919, bu he results were in all other respects a satisfactory that the city council decide get a bill through the New Zealand egislature before the war regulations were abolished to enable it to continue expand its activities in the milk i. This bill was passed in November,

For final transplanting, plants should be stocky, strong and have a good development of roots in proportion to top.

They should also be of suitable age, which varies with the types of plants. "Hardening" is accomplished by lessening the amount of water applied, thus causing the plant to check its rapid growth and become more woody. There was no other public exercise until evening, when the address of the lay was given by Rev. H. G. McGlauflin at the Methodist church. This was in the form of an illustrated lecture. Mr. McGlauffin had intended to give a lecture on the battle of Gettysburg, but the slides went astray and could not be got here in time, so there was substituted a lecture on Lincoln. This was both biographical and analytical, and covered all phases of Lincoln's life, character and service to the country and the world, profusely illustrated with a variety of scenes, and making a fitting close to the

In this production "Doug" has achieved the ambition of his life—and registers with it, what is by all odds the great, outstanding success of his career. His is a remarkable, clear-cut portrayal of the noble novel of Mediaeval France.

This tremendous film is the happy culmination of a desire of years on Fairbanks' part to enact what is conceded to be the most striking and heroic figure in the entire history of literature.

A. Walker & Son South Paris, Maine. CHOOSING A BED. The bed is the most important plece of furniture in the room. About one-third of every 24 hours is spent on it. For health and comfort a good bed is important, especially a good mattress and spring. A simple, painted metal single bed is desirable for a young girl. A slip-on cover of unbleached muslin is excellent for keeping the mattress clean. Sleeping without a pillow is often recommended, but the bed needs at least one pillow to make it look complete, and this, like the mattress, should be protected by a thin, close-fitting, washable cover between the ticking and the pillow
